But since that time circumstances had entirely changed, and there were two main in reasons. The first, and, indeed, the most far-reaching, was the effect of the publical had lion—the necessary publication—of the discovery of the existence of a German plot in reland—(cries. of "Oh," and "Hear, hear")—which he believed he should be able with the satisfy the House, was a real and imminent danger to this country. In addition, there was this fact, that the feeling in Ireland against conscription and the movement which necessarily followed upon it had been captured by the extremists and the physical force men, and was being used in conjunction with this German plot for their own purposes.
